Solemnity of Our Lord Jesus Christ, Universal King

We belong to the rule of Christ who rules not by being served but by his service of people, a service so radical that it led to his death. The cross is Christ's throne: on the cross he is lifted up and makes peace between God and humankind. Those who follow his rule of service will share in his kingdom of peace.

Loss and Bereavement - Part 4 of 4

This week I seek to bring to some kind of conclusion my thoughts on bereavement and the process of Grief. I've suggested that there are the five different stages in the process of Grief and these being Denial - Anger - Bargaining - Depression - Acceptance.

So far I've touched on Denial, Anger and Bargaining.

Denial protects us from the full impact of a loss and allows us to absorb it a little at a time and only as much as we can bear.

Anger can consume us when the truth begins to sink in.

Let there be no judgment on the presence of anger but we are responsible in how we let it manifest itself. There's a kind of craziness until this stage passes and people seem to pull themselves together and begin to recollect their good selves.

They are then ready to bargain.

In Bargaining we tend to make extravagant commitments that are unrealistic. At this stage we see that the situation is irreversible, and that our wishes, promises, prayers, have little or no effect on matters of life and death. It is a sobering and depressing reality.

(D) Depression

Some people confuse sadness and depression. Sadness is what we see at the beginning of grief. Tears flow, voices choke up, and emotions are right on the surface. Depression runs deeper and comes later in the process. Depression almost always follows hard on the heels of the realization that things will never be the same that life will not return to "normal". Depression may be the hardest time. The numbness has worn off and you feel the full weight of your loss. Your supporters have gone back to their own lives. Getting out of bed is a major effort. Getting it all together is unthinkable. It is important to be patient with yourself, to tune out people who are grimly determined to cheer you up. Make time to be alone and to be with people who understand where you are. When this time passes, and it will, you will be through the worst of it. You will have made peace with the situation, and you'll be ready to live again. Depression lifts gradually - an hour or two at first, then half a day or a little longer. You begin to enjoy things that used to give you pleasure. Something new catches your eye; your interest in life begins to revive.

(E) Acceptance

Almost imperceptibly your perspective alters and the fog lifts. Life without the person who has died begins to seem "normal."

We call this stage "acceptance." Accommodation might be a better word. It is nearly impossible to accept the loss of someone you love and to say "goodbye" forever.

There will always be an empty space: you will always be sorry he or she has died. But you can make peace with it, and this is what happens in the final stage of grief.

But when? Just as relationships take time to build it stands to reason that the restructuring will also take time. When that work of restructuring and disengaging is done, you will be a different person. Grieving is a lonely business even when other people in your family are grieving too. There are some things you can do to keep from feeling quite so alone and to keep the process flowing. Acknowledge your right to grieve. You needn't have lost a child or parent, or a spouse to be a "legitimate" mourner. If the person who died meant something to you, you have every right to mourn - and you need to. Find someone who has had a similar loss. You need someone who understands your grief, who won't minimize it or try to talk you out of it. Some people can share easily with their families. Other people welcome the extra help of counseling or a support group. Don't wait to get this help.

May the Risen Christ always shed His light upon all our moments of life, death, and resurrection.

PRAYERS OF THE FAITHFUL

Priest

Let us pray to our heavenly Father who has delivered us from the dominion of darkness and transferred us to the kingdom of his beloved Son.

Reader

Let us pray to our heavenly Father who has delivered us from the dominion of darkness and transferred us to the kingdom of his beloved Son.

Lord, Hear us,

Lord, graciously hear us.

For our political leaders: that they may strive to build a just and peaceful society.

Lord, Hear us,

Lord, graciously hear us.

For those who do not acknowledge Christ as their Saviour and King: that they may discover him in his followers.

Lord, Hear us,

Lord, graciously hear us.

We pray for all who are in prison or in detention, that they may not lose heart.

Lord, Hear us,

Lord, graciously hear us.

For grace that we may not be afraid to profess our faith in Christ before an indifferent and sometimes hostile world.

Lord, Hear us,

Lord, graciously hear us.

For a moment, we remember in silence our own particular needs.

Lord, Hear us,

Lord, graciously hear us.

Priest

God of power and love, may we do with loving hearts what you ask of us and come to share the life you promise in the Kingdom of your Son, who lives and reigns with you and the Holy Spirit, one God, for ever and ever.

I rejoiced when I hear them say: 'Let us go to God's house.'

Reflection for Parents

Today's children are not considered outcasts, but if you ask most children, they'll tell you they don't think adults really value their opinion. Jesus always reached out to the people that society generally found unimportant and that is a good thing for us to remember as parents. Even while he hung on the cross, Jesus preached the Good News to the criminals hanging with him. Sometimes we find ourselves living, witnessing, and teaching the Gospel message to our children even when the majority view is different. Jesus' words in today's Gospel give us the courage to share our faith with our children even when society doesn't count their input for much and even when the Gospel message is not the majority viewpoint.

THE SUNDAY READINGS

First Reading: 2 Samuel 5:1-3

David was anointed King; he was designated as ruler by a solemn act of pouring oil on his head. The word "Messiah" means the "Anointed One." For this reason, David is a figure of Jesus Christ, his descendant.

Second Reading: Colossians 1:12-20

Paul speaks of the ways in which Christ is our King. In all the aspects of his rule, Christ is spoken of in his human nature, as a man.

Gospel: Luke 23:35-43.

Associated with Jesus' passion, today's Gospel brings us to the scene of the crucifixion. Jesus, on his own cross, is flanked by thieves on either side. One of the thieves jeers and taunts Jesus calling him a king and wondering why a king cannot save himself and them as well. Jesus responds telling the thief that his royalty is not like that of earthly kingdoms. He has no material wealth or armies. The second thief asks Jesus to remember him when he comes into his kingdom. We know today that he is with Jesus in heaven.

Weekly Contribution – Tax Rebate

Helping Ballincollig parish financially without dipping into your pocket. Weekly many people contribute at least five euro to the offertory collection. This contribution could be enhanced by claiming from the Dept. of Finance the income tax paid by the donor on five euro a week. This tax rebate (can be claimed by organisations with charitable status which Ballincollig parish has) would amount to at least €40 per eligible donor. I need your help to further implement this scheme.

The Dept. of Finance will need a record to be kept locally verifying the contributions. The simplest method to implement this, is for Parishioners to record the number on their offertory box.

Please contact me, Fr. George, or office (phone 021 4871206) to record the number of your weekly offertory envelope (box).

Looking forward to hearing from you.
